HEADHUNT REVISITED

An expedition to the Solomon Islands and Papua New Guinea inspired by the 1926 journey of Caroline Mytinger

Paramount Pictures Executive Becomes Production Advisor for Headhunt Project

SEATTLE, Wash. – Mytinger Project, LLC announces its collaboration with Stratton Leopold, Executive Vice President for Production at Paramount Pictures. Leopold has been working with the Headhunt team in an informal capacity since last May, when he first met Westmorland and Huntt and learned about the inspirational story of Caroline Mytinger. He is assisting the two women in an advisory capacity, in an effort to ensure that their documentary film is produced to the highest quality, and that it is associated with the most appropriate production house and distributor.

Stratton Leopold was most recently the Executive Producer for Mission Impossible:III starring Tom Cruise. Other production work includes Paycheck with Uma Thurmann and Ben Affleck, The Sum of All Fears with Morgan Freeman, as well as The Mosquito Coast and The Big Chill, among many others. He's been working in feature films for many years, but his background and personal interest are in documentaries. The Headhunt team is thrilled to be collaborating with such a world-class filmmaker. Perhaps most important is the fact that he owns Leopold's Ice Cream parlor in Savannah, Georgia, which was started by his father and uncles in 1919.
